INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITION OF PROFICIENCY

The Recognition of Proficiency has been established by The Osteopathic Cranial Academy to designate members who have the clinical skills in osteopathic diagnosis and treatment, utilizing The Cranial Concept. Members who have taken proficiency testing have by written, oral and practical examination demonstrated adequacy of skill in Osteopathy in the Cranial Field at that point in time; however, The Osteopathic Cranial Academy does not make any representation regarding the present or prior proficiency of individual members.

The Osteopathic Cranial Academy Foundation

Building On The Vision

The cranial concept, which evolved from the founder of osteopathy A.T. Still, MD, DO, and one of his students, William Garner Sutherland, DO, offers a unique advance in the art and science of healing by directing the body's inherent ability to normalize function and promote healing. Cranial Osteopathy is the application of the principles of osteopathy to the entire body, including the bones, membranes and fluid surrounding the brain and spinal cord. It has a physiological explanation based on the study of anatomical structure and function and clinical observations of the response to treatment.

About The Osteopathic Cranial Academy Foundation

The Osteopathic Cranial Academy Foundation, Inc, is a 501(c)3 scientific, education charitable organization. The Foundation exists to fund education and research in the discipline of osteopathy, specifically Cranial Osteopathy. The Osteopathic Cranial Academy, an osteopathic organization officially affiliated with the American Osteopathic Association through the American Academy of Osteopathy, is dedicated exclusively to teaching, advocating and advancing osteopathy, specifically Cranial Osteopathy. Gifts to the Foundation are tax-deductible to the extent permitted by law.

Members of the Board of Directors of the Foundation embrace the philosophy that serving is not an obligation or opportunity but a gift. All board members serve without salary or stipend and pay all of their own expenses for travel, lodging, meals and business supplies at Board meetings.

Providing Education

Building on Dr. Sutherland's vision, quality continuing medical education is a high priority for the Foundation. Each year scholarships are available to undergraduate students of osteopathic colleges, interns and residents to attend the Introductory Course in Osteopathy in the Cranial Field, sponsored by The Osteopathic Cranial Academy. Foundation monies may also be used to purchase teaching aids, including skulls, bones and audio-visual equipment.

Supporting New Frontiers

For years one of the greatest challenges in Cranial Osteopathy has been ongoing scientific research—studies that document the benefits of Cranial Osteopathy. Research is expensive, and research funds must be replenished continuously. Your contribution could make a difference in the future of osteopathy.

SUTHERLAND CRANIAL TEACHING FOUNDATION, INC.

In 1953 William G. Sutherland, DO, expressed his thinking about the teaching of his work to several people who had been helping him. He was aware of the passing of time and felt that some arrangement should be made for continuity into the future. A foundation was decided upon as the form best suited for carrying on his teaching as he had developed it. On September 25, 1953, the Sutherland Cranial Teaching Foundation, Inc. was formed in Denver, Colorado, by the incorporators, William Garner Sutherland, DO, Adah M. Sutherland, Harold Ives Magoun, Sr., DO, and Chester Handy, DO. The bylaws of the corporation limit all activities to those designated as educational. By its teaching the SCTF serves to preserve and serve as a steward of the concept of osteopathy as developed by William G. Sutherland, DO.

CASE STUDY: Osteopathic Reasoning

Your case presentation should rise to the standards of contemporary medical publications. The score sheet (attached) will provide guidance in organizing and writing your case study submission.

In addition, this case presentation must also include “Osteopathic Reasoning” (or as Dr. Sutherland called it, “Thinking Osteopathy”). Osteopathy provides unique insight into the state of the patient. Palpatory observations of tissue function perceived during both examination and treatment reflects the patient’s history, and symptoms. Osteopathy not only relieves human suffering, it also helps us understand who this patient is and how their presenting condition came to be. The structural evaluation provides a “living image” of the patient’s response to life events.

In the discussion section of your case presentation, your task is to describe what makes your approach to this case uniquely osteopathic, and delineate your osteopathic thought processes and reasoning.

The following statements should serve as “guidance” in shaping the osteopathic reasoning of your case.

Your case should demonstrate osteopathic reasoning.

Cases that simply provide a list of lesions and techniques, without context, are not “Osteopathic.” Somatic Dysfunction does not occur in a vacuum. Somatic Dysfunction emerges as the result of the patient’s total life experience. There should be something in the History: Trauma, Surgeries, Pathology, etc. that explains the presence of somatic dysfunction. Dr. Still called this “The Law of Cause and Effect.”

What did you learn about your patient from the history, examination, and during the treatment process, that only an osteopathic approach could provide?

Describe your palpatory observations of tissue function/dysfunction, perceived during both the evaluation and the treatment process. Attend to tissue quality / function. Please be specific, and qualitative; more than “mechanical” in your description.

How do your Palpatory Perceptions correlate to patient’s History (medical, surgical, social and trauma), Symptom Picture, and Findings on physical examination?

Describe your perception of changes in tissue function over the course of treatment. Do these perceived changes in tissue function inform your understanding of this case? Do these perceptions of tissue change influence your case management?

Why did you choose this particular case? In other words, what makes it osteopathic?

Dr. Sutherland said it this way in Contributions of Thought: “Think of that minute thousandth of an inch and you may find yourself thinking osteopathy with the Founder of Science. You may then have an inkling of Dr. Still’s superior mechanical knowledge of the human body, a mechanism including fluids, soft tissues, cells, nuclei and electrons, as well as the mere osseous structure. Through that immense knowledge he was able to magnify the little things and interpret how they might alter affects and effects in physiological functioning. Listen to this thought from the same text: 'With anatomy in the normal properly understood, we are enabled to detect conditions that are abnormal.'"

CASE STUDY: Other Considerations

You, as the physician, should be the primary provider of osteopathic treatment.

The efficacy of the case should be the direct result of osteopathic treatment.

Utilization of other modalities such as dental appliances and corrective lenses are acceptable, but should not be the center of the case.
